For Students with Questions
THE RIGHT PLACE TO GO

When a new business is opened, floral sprays and the mailgrams with best wishes are very much appreciated, but it is the clientele which determines the need for the service and the success of the venture. So when the college formally opened its Academic Advisement Information Center on Friday, February 1 with a ribbon-cutting ceremony and speeches amid cookies, cake and champagne, it was reassuring to know that more than 200 students had already availed themselves of the services which the center is designed to offer.

Located adjacent to the Office of New Student Programs in Craig-Lee Hall, room 050, the center is being run under the coordination of Henry P. Guillotte, associate professor of mathematics. While it was opened officially on February 1, the center began seeing students with questions or problems on January 7.

The idea which gave rise to it began much earlier. In the early part of the decade of the 70's the Undergraduate Academic Advisement Committee chaired by James Cornelison, who at that time was director of new student programs, recommended the formation of an academic services center of which an academic advisement operation was to be a component part. The concept was studied, debated and refined through the following years and this year the center in Craig-Lee 050 came into being.

Dolores A. Passarelli, director of new student programs, who is assisting in the coordination of the service, explained that the purpose of the center is to provide a "complimentary/supplementary" advising function for the college community. "We stress the link between the student's academic advisor and the center," she pointed out.

Utilizing the spring semester registration packet which is given to all students, the center's staff of 5 faculty members and 4 student peer counselors made the student community aware of the center's existence. Letters were also sent to all students who had not declared a major as of the beginning of the spring semester, the assumption being that this group might have a greater need for advisement at this time. The strategy apparently worked well, since the traffic in Craig-Lee 050 is still averaging 6 to 7 clients per day.

Passarelli, who is responsible for supervising the student employees, said that the establishment of the center is the first campus-wide project which involves a formal joint effort by the Student Affairs Division and the Division of Arts and Sciences. Budget for the center is being provided by both divisions. Student Affairs is making student workers, space, furnishing and supplies available. Academic Affairs is supplying faculty members to staff the center.

"I'm interfacing with the center because of its obvious implications in the student services end of things," Passarelli observed.

The staff is in the process of devising evaluation instruments to determine if the students it serves believe it to be functioning well.

Faculty members in addition to Guillotte who are working with clients are Kenneth Walker, associate professor of secondary education; Armand Patrucco, professor of history; Robert Viens, assistant professor of physical sciences and William Oehlkers, associate professor of elementary education. The student counselors who screen clients to discover what help they need and who give them introductory information are Doug Cureton, Geraldine Kachadourian, Susan Wood and Jacqueline Landfield. The student employees also assist in record-keeping at the center.

Appointments for advisement may be made between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. Mondays and Fridays. Tuesdays the hours are 9 to 5, Thursdays 9 to 8. On Wednesday the center will be open from 9 to 2 and from 4 to 8. The phone number is 456-8183.

About 50 people from across the college community attended the ribbon-cutting ceremony. Brief remarks were offered by Gary Penfield, acting vice-president for student affairs, by John Salesses, assistant vice-president for academic affairs and by Lisa Coresetti, vice-president of the student community government.

Focus on the Faculty and Staff

MINER K. BROTHERTON, assistant professor of Physical Sciences, has been recently named Science Editor by New England Offshore publisher Herbert Glick. His latest article is "A Short Course in Beach Watching" which appears in the February issue of this periodical.

ROSE S. ABRAMHAM, administrative secretary in Student Affairs, spoke to a group of 60 Secretarial Science students at Rhode Island Junior College, Lincoln.

Mrs. Abraham spoke on The National Secretaries Association (International). She is currently serving her second term as Vice President of the Rhode Island Division of the National Secretaries Association (Int.) and has been nominated for President. Elections take place in May.

Mrs. Abraham talked on a program sponsored by the association, the Certified Professional Secretary (CPS) rating. This rating may be attained by participating in a two-day examination composed of six parts. An applicant has up to five years to successfully complete all parts of the exam and does not have to be a member of the National Secretaries Association to take the exam. This past year RIC approved the offering of 25 hours of credit towards the B.A., B.S., or B.G.S. degree to anyone possessing this CPS rating.

Secretaries on campus who are enrolled in or planning to enroll in a degree program here may be interested in pursuing this rating. It will assist them in getting their degree sooner. Interested parties can contact Mrs. Abraham at extension 8123.

What's Happening

The RIC Theatre and the English Department are co-sponsoring a Shakespeare Festival from February 13 to 18. Planned are performances of Macbeth by the RIC Theatre Company, before-the-curtain Elizabethan Banquets and lectures, and after-the-curtain-call on-stage discussions.

The Elizabethan Banquets, scheduled for 5 p.m. on Friday, Feb. 15 and Sat., Feb. 16 offer a meal of authentic Elizabethan dishes, including Gouro Soupe, Pickled Mushrooms, Boyle Capon with Collefloures, Boyle Peascods, Sallet of Potatoe and Hot Spiced Apples. A lecture will follow. On Friday evening at the Student Union Ballroom, English Professor Robert W. Comery will lecture on Macbeth. On Saturday evening at the Faculty Center, English Professor Carolyn Ruth Swift Lenz will lecture on a feminist view of Lady Macbeth. Reservations for the $9-a-plate banquet must be made by Friday, Feb. 8, by calling the RIC Box Office 456-8144.

On Wed., Feb. 13 at 2 p.m. in Craig-Lee 255, a panel of RIC faculty will discuss "The Literary, Dramatic and Technical Challenges in Performing *Macbeth."

Performances of Macbeth are scheduled in Roberts Hall Feb. 14 through Feb. 17. Curtain is at 8 p.m. A special performance for high school students is scheduled for Feb. 15 at 10 a.m.

The director for the production of Macbeth is David Burr, associate professor of theatre at RIC.

ONE-MAN ART EXHIBIT

Assistant professor of art Krisjohn Horvat is exhibiting his sculpture in a one-man show at the RIC Art Center's Bannister Gallery from Jan. 25 through Feb. 15. Featured will be Horvat's works completed from late 1977 to the present. The opening will be from 7 to 9 p.m. on Jan. 24.

Horvat, who received his master's degree in fine arts from the Rhode Island School of Design after graduating from the Minneapolis College of Art and Design, has won many major national competitions for his sculpture, including a President's Award for best of show at the Corpus Christi National Sculpture Competition and a Purchase Award in the Coos Art Museum National Exhibition. His works have been shown nationally in various juried shows such as the Minnesota State Competition, the Marietta (Ohio) National Competition and the Coos Art Museum National Exhibition. He has also shown his work in the Haarlem (Netherlands) Invitational of the Haarlem Artist's Club.

Horvat has studied art and sculpture independently through his travels in Europe and the U.S.

Exhibit hours are Mon. through Fri. from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Sun. from 1 to 4 p.m.
