WHO WOULD WORK FOR 23 CENTS
PER HOUR?

SHE DOES.

we are taking our ideas to you selling a message, not selling us to you the consciousness of BSS220
to help you awaken dedicated to being socially responsible but not conformed in any way limitless

we take a stand in our beliefs and stand firm as the cement that paves Broad Street
we know who we are
and stay true to that
now the question we ask in the form of our products is who are you?

The Product Design Team is a program of youth designers from AS220 Broad Street Studio in Providence, Rhode Island. The PDT teaches young people how to turn their art into marketable visual merchandise by creating designs for events and organizations, which are then used in t-shirts and other visual material. The main goal of the Product Design Team is to leverage the creativity of youth entrepreneurship through branded apparel and other products. The result: introducing BSS220, a socially responsible line of youth designed products.

As young people and artists, we recognize the cycle of exploitation oppressing people around the world: from the streets and prisons of Rhode Island to the sweatshops of Indonesia. Therefore, we work to ensure all of our products are manufactured under fair conditions. All of our shirts are produced sweatshop free and printed by local screen printers.

We are against greed, corporate predators, and political manipulation. We are bonded through our souls that struggle for survival. With our artwork, we swing on corporations that use others and the planet for their own selfish gain.
