Conquering Giants by Nya Lynn

Inspired by David and Goliath by Caravaggio

You tried to look right through me
With those big brown eyes
You thought you would fool me
With your disguise
A poorly constructed garment
Quite oversized
Made up of huge mistakes
And even bigger lies

Did you hope to belittle me?
Make me feel small?
Would that have helped your big ego
To watch me crawl?
Though I was not a giant like you
I did not fear at all
Because unlike you I knew
How hard giants fall

It didn't take much effort
To knock you down
Your arrogance once so loud
No longer made a sound
The biggest and toughest
Of any one around
But it only took one tiny truth
To bring your face to the ground
